SYNOPSIS

So immersed in her work of writing novels that she is one of the most successful authors of the day, Susanne Danbury has neglected the matter of personal appearance to the extent where she becomes a frump in the matter of dress and contemporary society whispers; "Susanne couldn't catch a man in the world - if some other woman wanted him",

Just at the time society loses all hope over her matrimonial chances, Susanne falls in love with Gaylord who illustrates her books. Hugh Bemis, her publisher, and his wife are giving a week end party at their Long Island home and Susanne and Walter Gaylord are invited.

The usual entertainments failing to entertain, Susanne suggests an amateur theatrical and the idea finds favor. Gaylord is cast as the hero and Susanne as "The villain". The latter realizes the need of publicity for herself before Gaylord who is beginning to fall for Mrs. Bemis' machinations.

The play proceeds heroically until the moment arrives that Bemis is shot and badly wounded by a bullet from a supposedly unloaded revolver. In an instant the comedy changes to tragedy. Investigation reveals the fact that the weapon had been unloaded but fails to uncover who reloaded it afterwards.

The final unweaving of this mystery brings Gaylord and Susanne together while an opportune confession clears both of any complicity in the crime.

This, in brief is the synopsis of "Heroes and Husbands", Katherine MacDonald's latest picture. Nigel Barrie is cast as leading man and the remainder of the company includes: Charles Clary, Charles Gerrard, Mona Kingsley and Ethel Kay. Chet Withey directed.
